Three Men Killed by an Explosion of Molten Metal. CHICAGO, July 16 .- A horrible accident occurred this morning at the Union steel works, corner of Ashland and Archer avenues, by which three men are likely to die. The men were engaged in pouring not iron into a mold that was damp, when the metal flew and seared them dreadfully. They were taken to the county hospital, and the physicians declare their recovery is out of the question. Two of the injured are Poles and the third a Hungarian. The particulars of the accident are as follows:

A large casting was to be made, and the preparations had been completed by a night shift of men. The ladle by which the moiten metal was to be carried mouth of the blast furnace to the mold had been freshly plastered by one of the night men with. ing. At 5:30 o'clock this morning the picked out of the furnace spout and a lava-like rush of white-hot metal took place. It was a large melt for a big casting, and besides the men who had business around that seething cauldron others were grouped admiring the scintillating sparks that flew from the bubbling stream. All at once there was an upheaval in the ladle. An explosion interior. In a moment the hot metal was spreading itself over the heads and faces and bodies of on-lookers and workers alike. The water in the fresh plaster had generated steam and a miniature boiler explosion with maximum results had taken place. The thick paving of coal dust and molding sand on the floor was forced into the air and gave the outside the impression of a great fire. But there was no fire and hardly any damage to the building to speak of; but a dozen men lay groaning in agony when the blinding cloud had subsided. The police and uninjured men formed a rescuing party, and quickly three of the worst hurt were on their way to the county

PANIC IN AN ORPHAN ASYLUM. The Children Awakened to Meet Thick Smoke and Unknown Terrors. New York, July 16 .- An hour before daybreak a fire broke out at St. Joseph's Asylum at 89th street and Avenue A. The main building was ablaze and the colony of children within in an uproar. The outbreak had occurred in the basement. Nearly two hundred children, the full complement of the institution, were asleep within its walls. The sisters in charge, who throughout the scene of terror and confusion that followed struggled with great heroism to preserve order and to facilitate the work of rescue, aroused the sleepers promptly and sped them on their way to the street. The thick smoke and unknown terrors that beset their way threw them into a panic however, and the sisters maintained their hold upon them with difficulty, dren directed to the police station in 88th street, were they were marshaled by the sisters. None were missing, lierbert Batze, aged nine, was severely burned in escaping. His clothes caught fire and his face and limbs were badly scorched. The hook and ladder company reached the asylum as the 216 PA. AVE. N. W. (South Side.)

Persons going abroad, or leaving the city should avail themselves of the advantages offered by this company for the safe keeping of bonds, securities, jewelry, plate and other valuables. Clothing, paintings, works of art, planos, brice-a-brac, rugs, carpets, &c. &c., can be stored at low rates. Take action before, rather than after, your valuables are stolen or burned.

Office Hours: 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. last of the children were emerging on the street.
Shrieks were heard from an upper story, and three female attendants were found to be imprisoned

where they were marshaled by the sisters. None on the third floor. They had not dared to follow the children down stairs. Ladders were thrown up to the window, and Capt. Jos. Shaw and Roundsman Weise carried them down. The girls were Chrisman Weise carried them down. tina White, Euzabeth Hainesshmake and Josephine Dreferbach. They were overcome with terror, but uninjured. The firemen made short work of the fire. It damaged the building to the extent of $2,500. How it broke out is not known. A few weeks ago the asylum had a fire scare. Some clothes caught fire in the cupola on the roof, and one of the sisters had her hand burned. This fire

Labor's Fight on Adulterated Foods. | COMPLAINTS AGAINST RAILEDADS. THE ENIGHTS TAKE A HAND IN BEHALF OF BALTI-Decisions of the Interstate Commerce MORE CAN MAKERS. Commission. PHILADELPHIA, July 16.—In the warfare against

Counsel for the Missouri Pacific Railway Co. having made a motion before the Interstate Commerce Commission that it dismiss the complaint of the St. Louis wholesale grocers, for want of jurisdiction in the matter of the issuance of mileage the motion, first, because notice was not given to had risen to 98.5 degrees. complainants, and second, because its object was to reach the merits of the case and have them discussed and passed upon summarily instead of at the customary final hearing. The Commission Protective Association and Assembly 1384, of Bal-timore. The members of the order are requested to purchase goods packed only in hand-made cans. closes its record upon this matter with a paragraph of more general interest, as follows: "A practice thus to anticipate by motion the final hearing the Commission did not think advisable and would not therefore favor. It is the desire of the Commission that the practice and proceedings in cases before us shall be in the simlest form possible consistent with justice and it dilatory motions, pleas in abate ment or other interlocutory proceedings, the mat-ter in question may be brought to an issue at the earliest practicable day when a final hearing may be had forthwith, and all proper questions will then be entertained, whether jurisdictional or going to the merits of the controversy." An exactly similar disposition was made, an for like reasons, of a motion made to-day to dis miss the complaints of the Walla Walla peop against the Oregon Railway and Navigation Co tag complaints being of excessive charges for the transportation of grain to Portland. The Walla Walla cases are set for hearing on October 4 next.

The decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission, disposing of the complaints of the Dakota farmers against the Manitoba Railroad Company, has been made of record, and is of general interest as showing the course of the Con n respect to many of the matters which come before it in other than strict legal form, but which nevertheless appear to have merit and to be brought in good faith. The substance of the complaint is stated to be refusal of the company to furnish cars last fall and winter and a fear that the course of the defendant will be similar the coming fall. The Commission finds no charge of any misconduct since the passage of the interstate act, and, having no authority to anticipate violations of law or issue planation, and also for giving assurances as to the future if inclined to do so. To the petition the deendant company answered, excusing its failure to furnish cars during the time specified by complainant, and averring that the company had now procured an additional number of cars, so that it

MARRIED TO SPITE HIS FATHER.-A young ma In Prison Since 1867.—Geo. Thompson, alias Andrew Stricker, alias Alexander Jerome, who was sentenced from Essex County, N. J., in February, 1867, to thirty years for robbery and attempting to kill the sister of Governor Ward, was released yesterday, having received a commutation of 3,506 days for good behavior. Jerome had been in prison before and was pardoned by Governor Ward. A few days afterward he repaid the governor's clemency by robbing and shooting at his sister. Jerome is sixty-one years old, and during his long term committed no breach of prison discipline.

none is more attractive, take it all in all, than Asbury Park. There is not the social rout that one finds at Cape May, Atlantic City or Long Branch, but there is every comfort, and one can enjoy solid rest. The beach is good and wide, the surf comes in abundantly, and there is every facility for the bathers to enjoy themselves. What has particularly struck me about the place is that there is fortunate, very fortunate. You buy your provisions and meats in the raw, and you know the unwary tourist. The prices of everything are extremely reasonable. Stages go all around the park and down to the depot five minutes apart, and the fare is only five cents. Living is not high. You can hire a horse and buggy for an afternoon for $2.50. I got a double team, with a driver, to mandatory process based upon suppositions or lears, it says it might, with entire propriety, have advised the parties to wait until it was seen whether their fears were to be realized. But as it was quite possible that the fears might not be wholly groundless it was deemed proper to send defendant a capy of the petition that it might have an opportunity for explanation, and also for giving assurances as to the take my wife and myself over to Long Branch, six miles distant. We drove through Elberon, then through John Hoey's beautiful gardens, and were gone about three hours and a half, and all for $3. That's reasonable enough, isn't it?

Asbury Park is distressingly good. The rules and regulations that the venerable Bradley has posted up on the beach, at every pavillion and bath house are such as would pain a man of fliexible morality to live up to, but they serve the purpose of making this the most orderly resort on the pose of making this the most orderly resort on the Atlantic coast. The order against the sale of intoxicating beverages of every description, from the persuasive beer to the irritating whiskey, is very strong, and every hotel or boarding-house keeper was believed there would hereafter be no difficulty in handling its business promptly and without has to pledge himself to observe it before his license is granted. Nevertheless the boys manage to frequent the numerous drug stores and take cool soda, with a stick in it. Then we shall hold a national convention and settle the exact pur poses and policy of our order in a constitution and by-laws. In a general way, however, I may say that the league will doubtless aim at the creation by agitation of a public opinion favorable to the rights of the colored man, and at the collection and maintenance of a fund for the prosecution of those who violate the laws which have been enacted in our behalf. The league will mingle in politics, of course. It will try to get the body of colored men to assume an independent position in politics. Then, and not till then, will we be better off. Our proceedings will be secret, of course. We don't fear that this formation of the race into separate political organization can draw upon it The work of preliminary organization is going on splendidly. We have a large organization in Virginta, and I understand that the first steps toward State organization in Connecticut were taken yes terday in Hartford by the coalition of the negro societies there. Undoubtedly our negro societies will form the basis of the present league. You can't begin to know how ready our people are for this movement. All our organization wants for its success is that it should once get fairly started."

Inspector McLaughlin arrested Martin Kavanagh and Michael Ward on suspicion of having committed the crime. Ward had an ugly wound on his cheek for which he could not account. Ward and Kavanagh at one time boarded at the same house with Cox. All were infatuated with the landlady, a Mrs. Horn, and Cox and Ward frequently fought over ner. Cox was badly beaten on one occasion, and was confined to the hospital. It is now supposed that Cox met the man and the quarrel was renewed. USE SHORT PEN-HANDLES.-A man cannot write rapidly or gracefully with a long-handled pen. The reason is that in describing the curves of the various letters the long handle must describe similar curves, and the longer the handle the more sweeping the curves. In writing, the thumb and foreinger act as a fulcrum. The pen-handle is the lever. Now it stands to reason that the longer the lever. Now it stands to reason that the longer the lever the slower will be its motions. That is a law of natural philosophy, and yet many men will persist in using long pen-handles. The proper length for a pen-handle is about an inch longer than the index finger.

pay for all it is worth. And you ask how this is done? Let me tell you. The man who eats at home and has a cleanly woman for a wife, ow they are cooked and what you are eating. But saloon life is different. You go in there and order pork and beans; you leave some of the bears on your plate, the plate goes into the kitchen and the beans lert by you are dumped again into the bean pot from which other orders are subsequently served. All beans left over are served the same way. Now caterers, hotels and saloons have on the back of their stoves or ranges large iron pots that are known as the stock pots. If you have a piece of beef, mutton, pork, lamb or other kind of meat upon your plate, when the plate reaches the kitchen the meat is thrown into this stock pot. Chicken heads and feet unwashed are thrown into this pot, and meat which has be-come slightly tainted. An order is given, Tomato soup, one,' in the stock pot goes the iron ladle, out comes this conglomerated liquid, poured into a soup plate, in which is thrown some raw tomatoes from a can, and there you are. 'Chicken soup' is ordered; the order comes from the stock pot, the soup clarified, a little barley thrown in, and the order is filled. 'Bouillon, one.' Here is the sticker, but it is surmounted. Out of the same stock pot comes the soup, a little onion is added, the soup clarified, and through the saloon rings from the kitchen 'Boulilon, ready.' 'Beef stew,' 'lamb stew,' mutton broth, consomme, vermicelli, Pate d'Italie, macaroni soups all come from the stock pot. > Geo. A. Dennison writes as follows: To an Amercan who is a lover of song birds the first hearing of the European skylark is a noteworthy event. While waiting for the bird to sing he is likely to so far surpass the music of our best singers as the world-wide reputation of the bird might lead one to expect. It was on Long Island, about a week ago, only a few miles from our own city, that I heard for the first time this "assisted emigrant, whose advent (neaven be praised!) our laws have not opposed. I was waiking near a field, not of grass, nor grain, nor vegetables, but weeds—a desolate waste—from which none would expect a nelody to arise whose beauty has been proclaimed minded that to the lark as to other birds weeds are not weeds; for a new voice arose out of the rising by short, quick flights. He poured torth a flood of notes as he went upward. The voice had something in it—something indescribable—that made it different from any bird song of ours. Then, too, it sang while rising. This could be none other than the European saylark, especially as I had been told that he could be heard in that neighborhood. It is wonderfully inspiring to hear a bird sing as ne mounts heavenward, yet with the skylark

(dare I say it?) the first feeling of the listener is apt to be one of disappointment. For the quality of tone and the character of particular notes is what engrosses the attention at the outset, and the observer calls to mind a large number of singers whose notes are equal to these. He can even name several whose voices surpass this new voice from the Old World. But do not insist too much upon tone quanty. Wait and listen. The song grows upon you. You wonder where any creature can find the power to sing so rapturously and continuously while mounting into the sky. There is no pause at all between the notes. They are almost as rapid as those of the bobolink, though less impetuous, with less bubbling exuberance. This is truly the joy-song of a bitthe spirit The skylara's is not a ringing song, nor is it very loud; but being sweet, it is heard a long distance when the bird is in the air. There is a marked
